The gestures of the lower animals are either facial, like the grimaces of the monkey, or changes of bodily attitude, like those of a dog. After citing the above mentioned facts the president of the authropological seccent address went on to say that he thought it might not unreasonably be inferred that the remote progenitors of man relied upon equally lowly means of communication and that from such humble beginnings speech has been slowly evelved. NATURE'S ICEHOUSE. Food For Birds That Is Preserved In

The number of birds that go to the arctic regions to breed is vast beyond annds, but by tens and hundreds o thousands, and because nowhere else in the world does nature provide at he same time and in the same place such a lavish prodigality of food. The vegetation consists of cranberry cloudberry and crowberry bushes, and these, forced by the perpetual sunshine of the arctic summer, bear enor mous creps of fruit. But the crop is not ripe until the middle and end of he arctic summer, and if the fruit eating birds had to wait until it was ripe hey would starve in the meantime, so they arrive on the very day of the nelting of the snow.

But each year the snow descends or an immense crop of ripe fruit before the birds have time to gather it. It is thus preserved perfectly fresh and pure, and the melting of the snow discloses the bushes, with the unconsumed last year's crop banging on them ground.

The frozen meal stretches across the breadth of northern Asia. It never decays and is accessible the moment the snow melts. The same heat which thaws the fruit brings into being the most prolific insect life in the worldthe mosquito swarms on the tundra. No European can live there without a reil after the snow melts. The gun barrels are black with them, and clouds of them often obscure the sight. Thus the insect enting birds have mly to open their mouths to fill them with mosquitoes, and thus the pres ence of swarms of cliff chaffs, pipis and the wagtails in this arctic region s accounted for,-Pearson's.

Fresh Water Sponges. That certain sponges can do a grea deal of harm is now maintained by a French scientist. According to him, the water supply of some cities and towns has been polluted by them, and the wa ter supply of others may be polluted if steps are not taken to prevent it. Sponges of this kind are found only in fresh water and are known as "cornacuspongia." A close examination shows that each of the various parts of such a sponge is composed of three layers. First, there is a flattened layer of epithelial cells, which covers the outer surface; next, there is a digestive layer of cells, each of which is surrounded by a collar, from which prolects a little thong or whip, and, finally, between these two there is a third layer, containing the reproductive cells as well as the spicules and fibers which form the skeleton.

In some sponges the spicules are com osed of silica and in others of calcium carbonate. After some time sponges of this typ decay, and if the water inhabited by them is used for drinking purposes the pollution caused by them is likely, according to the French scientist to prove injurious to the public health, and therefore he recommends that the water be cleared of such sponges wher ever it is possible to do so. There are sponges of this kind in many rivers and ponds in this country

How many miles a man walks in his lifetime depends naturally upon how much he walks a day on the average. but the man who walks the least covers a vast number of miles before he dies. Some men walk two miles a day, some four or five and some as many as ten. If a man walks two miles a day and lives to be thirty years old, he will cover 21,900 miles. At the same age a man who walks three miles a day will have walked 32,850 miles. Almost every man walks between two and three miles a day just in going about the house, the office, the shop and in going to and from the cars, etc. A man who walks five miles a day finds that at the age of thirty he has covered 54,750 miles and at the uge of sixty 109.500. From this should, strict ly speaking, be subtracted the few months or a year when he was a baby unable to walk, but the result would not be affected materially. Now, the circumference of the earth at the equator is only 24,809 miles, so therefore a man who at the age of sixty has averaged five miles a day since he was able to walk has walked enough miles to have encircled the Letter to Brice Hardware Co.

Bedjord, Pa.

Dear Sirs: You have taken the agency for the foremost paint in the world: Devoe lead and zinc. It is right to put bafore you the facts as to why it is the foremost.

(1) Best materials; lead, zinc, dryer color and linseed oil, ONLY used in it.

(2) It contains nothing else whatever; no water, no alkali, no benzine, no petroleum, no fish oil, no barytes, no whiting—no adulterant.

(3) Your state chemist not only has analyzed the paint, and verified (1) and (2); but he is going to buy it and an analyze it occasionally, and thus watch over the interests of your customers.

(4) It is proportioned for wear.

(5) It is mixed intimately and ground fine.

(6) It is full measure (231 cubic inches a gallon).

(7) It is sold at so low a price as to make it the aper than lead and oil.

(8) It wears twice as long, and therefore costs less shan half as much by the year.

(9) You can refund the money if any customer is dissatisfied.

(10) We are responsible; have been in business 145 years without a break, and are the largest paint-manufacturers in the U. S.

Yours truly,
F. W. Devoc & Co.
